Answer

(Laughs) Aside from you, no.

Mary: (Laughs) I wouldn't even say you encouraged me, you just invited me.

I invited you, yes. No, as you and I both feel, we love our privacy. Obviously because we share a lot with people, we do get very little private time and so we treasure our private time, and as a result of that we love our privacy. We definitely would never want to live with somebody else, aside from that other person being a child that we had. My feelings about living with other people is that often times, you've got to deal with their emotional projections and their unloving behaviour and so forth. But not only that, even if they were perfectly loving I would still love to spend private time with you and experience my life with you, and so I don't like to spend a lot of time with everybody all the time. I love sharing Divine Truth with people, I love it particularly when people want to hear it; if people don't want to hear it then I don't. Aside from that I love to spend time alone with yourself, or alone with myself, with God: either of those two things.

We have never encouraged anybody to come and live with us. We have sometimes suggested to people – when they've asked – that they can live with us for a short period of time, for a reason. My personal feeling is that most people, or all people, need to take personal responsibility for their living arrangements, which includes personal responsibility for their home, for their kitchen, for their welfare, for their life, for their food, for their clothes, for their shelter, and all of those other aspects of life. Sometimes we have visitors who come to stay with us, but oftentimes it's a very short period of time that we like to have visitors. I don't think we've had many visitors in the last three or four years that have been here any longer than one week or less, and we prefer it that way because we love to have our personal time together and we definitely would not ever have a "compound" where lots and lots of people live together. We would feel that to be a very strange living arrangement.
